POTATOES MAKE MORE FORTUNES THAN ARE FOUND IN KLONDIKE.

IMMENSE POTATO FIELD ON

(Special from a Staff Correspondent.)

NORFOLK, V.A., May 19.—The potato crop of Norfolk and Princess Anne counties amounts every year to about a million and a half busileds. The amount of potatoes brought to this city from the surrounding farms and sold in the past five years reached the grand total of 2,234,73 barrels, or 6,890,419 bushels. The crop last year was the largest of the half decade, amounting to 555,639 barrels, or 1,525,95 bushels.

The crop of this year will not begin to mature for some weeks. The indications are that it will be a large one, though not phenomenal. Rains are much needed. Truckers think, too, that he crop was of the season and that the crop will be greatly demaged, which is the history of many other seasons.

Potatoes form the great staple of this trucking country. Strawberries have his year been worth many thousands of dollars to the truckers, but the crop was of unusual size and quality. The sturdy, humble potato is as a rule the standby, humble potato is as a rule the fortunes of more men. The fortunes for more men. The fortunes of more men. The fortunes have not come so quickly as they came to the men who determined the men who werage in point or quantity. The quanty will be good, unless present indication fail.

Potatoes and berries will probably prove to he the great money makers for the truckers this season. There was very little made on kale and spinach, which were shipped in large quantities, Peas were almost an absolute failure; it has been impossible to secure even a fair "stand" or discumbers. The cabbage crop has not been up to the average. Heans are not starding well.

toes were they not kept in subjection. Paris green is used with results perfectly satisfactory to everybody save the bugs. The device used in spraying the potato vines is interesting but extremely simple. It consists of a big barrel mounted on a two-wheel truck, with pipes and an automatic arrangement to regulate the amount of the solution used. The barrel is filled with the poisonous solution, a horse is attached to the cart, and a negro drives the machine back and forth across the field.
